Kingman County awards KCAC roof project

The Kingman County Commission at its regular weekly meeting Monday accepted a bid from Building Solutions, LLC, Dodge City, to replace the roof on the Kingman County Activity Center (KCAC).

The cost of the project is $197,800. The county has planned for this project and has been setting aside funds in a special KCAC roof account for seven years. That account, along with a recent insurance settlement from storm damage, will pay for the new roof.

Building Solutions, LLC was one of four companies to submit bids. The new metal, standing seam roof will replace the building's original roof, which was put in place when the KCAC was constructed in 1979.

Work on the roof replacement is expected to begin in two weeks and take approximately two months to complete.

The KCAC is located at 121 S. Main in Kingman. The facility includes an indoor arena that seats 1,000, three meeting rooms and a fully furnished kitchen. It also has an outdoor arena, stalls for 140 horses and 45 camper hookups.
